VOLUME 25, NUMBER 1

Bring Monticello Home! Handcrafted Windsor Chairs

Curators at Monticello have recently selected furniture for the newly restored and interpreted rooms on the second and third floors of Thomas Jefferson's home.

A consummate host, Jefferson purchased numerous bow-back Windsor chairs for Monticello and for Poplar Forest, his retreat home in Bedford County, Va. Visitors to Monticello who see these period chairs on tours can "bring the look home."

The Shop at Monticello is now pleased to offer customers the same Windsor chairs selected by Monticello curators for the restored upper floors. Like the originals Jefferson placed at Monticello, the chairs are made of solid wood with bamboo turned legs and a comfortable seat. The Shop is also offering a round cherry table and other curator-selected pieces that are similar to those produced in the Monticello joinery. An adaptation of the original birdcage candle stand, used in Jefferson's dining room, will join favorites like the revolving bookstand and Campeachy chair in the Shop's line of reproduction furniture. These unique furniture pieces are available in-store and online at
